WANT TECHNICAL EDUCATION IN REDCLIFF SOON

Department Suggests Night Schools in Redcliff -- Will Give Instructions in Drafting, Mining, Stenography And Sewing -- All Should Attend Meeting

At the regular meeting of the school board held last evening, Trustee Nicholson informed the board that Mr. Miller, director of technical education, had been in town this week and was anxious to form night classes in Redcliff. He suggested taking up such subjects as mining, drafting, sewing and stenography to start, and wanted a start made as soon as possible.

Already local men have signified their willingness to take charge as instructors for mining and drafting. Mr. R. Hamilton for the former, and Mr. Hurd for the latter.

These classes will be held in the school at night, and are open to any one in town who may wish to gain some knowledge in these lines. Classes in English and mathematics may also be taken up if there are enough expressing a desire to attend them.

These classes are already becoming quite popular in other towns and cities. The course lasts for sixteen weeks, and two meetings are held each week.

The expense in connection with these classes is very small, and the government will pay half the salaries of instructors.

In order to get the voice of the people and find if there are enough in town interested to warrant them in undertaking the scheme, the board has called a public meeting for next Wednesday in the school, when all branches of the work will be discussed, and if possible classes formed.

At the present time with the long winter evenings coming on, we feel sure there ought to be enough young men and ladies in town who will be anxious to take advantage of this opportunity to brush up on the lines above mentioned.

If classes are formed the board will provide sewing machines, typewriters and other implements necessary, so that here will be practically no expense for any who may wish to attend these classes.

Go to the meeting next Wednesday and give the board the assistance they deserve in this undertaking.

Redcliff Men With Second Contingent

The hundred men asked for from the Hat district for the second contingent passed through here last night en route for Calgary, where they will go in training. Among them were the following young men from Redcliff: Messrs. Robert Heaney, Geo. E. Gledhill, Thos. Bright, Wm. Watson, Robt. Calder, G. Morrell, Reg. Corbin and R. G. Warner.

When the train in which the soldier boys were travelling pulled into Redcliff about eleven o'clock last night, there was a big crowd of our citizens at the station to give the boys a send-off. Several patriotic songs were sung, and as the train pulled out three hearty cheers and a tiger were given.

Although enlistment for this allotment from this district only started Wednesday morning, the full complement had signed up and ready to go before evening. Twice this number could easily have been raised if necessary.

CANADIAN SOLDIERS OFF FOR THE FRONT

From word that has been received at Ottawa it is understood that the first of the Canadian troops to reach the firing line will be the Princess Patricia regiment. It will go to the front very soon, and the next troops to follow them will not be the first contingent at Salisbury Plains, but the detachments from the Princess Patricia regiment to be sent from Canada.

C. F. Jamieson has retired from the editor's chair of the Times, Medicine Hat. As he is connected with several financial firms in Eastern Canada he will open up an office in the Royal bank building.

SLIGHT EXPLOSION AT WATER TANK

Water Inspector Harvey Was Burned About Face and Hands--Little Other Damage Done -- Harvey's Injuries Not Serious

Last Tuesday morning an explosion which could be heard all over town, occurred at the standpipe in the east end.

It has been the custom to keep a fire under the tank in cold weather to keep the water from freezing. In some way the jet blew out and the gas kept on escaping. When Wm. Harvey, water inspector, was making his rounds, he visited the standpipe, and immediately on entering found the place filled with gas and guessed at the cause. Thinking to take extra precaution he immediately opened up the doors, then began to feel in his pocket for a match to be in readiness when the proper time came to light it. While taking one from his pocket it in some unaccountable way became ignited and immediately an explosion followed. Although very little damage was done to the tank, Mr. Harvey was badly burned about the face and hands.

Engineer Ashwith was soon on the scene and had Mr. Harvey removed to Dr. Brown's office, where his burns were attended, and it was found he was not seriously hurt. At present although suffering considerable pain, Mr. Harvey is progressing favorably and will be out and around again in a few days.

As is usual in such cases greatly exaggerated reports as to the damage were afloat, some going so far as to say the tank was blown fifteen feet. The door leading to the upper part of the tank was the only part that shows any signs of disfigurement.

LORD ROBERTS PASSES AWAY

Field Marshal Earl Roberts died last Saturday in France from pneumonia. A telegram from Field Marshal Sir John French, commander of the expeditionary forces of the British on the continent, appraised Earl Kitchener, secretary of state for war, of the death of England's great soldier. The telegram said:

"I deeply regret to tell you that Lord Roberts died at 8 o'clock"

The death of Earl Roberts was extremely sudden. He was in his usual good health when he left England on Wednesday with his daughter, Lady Aileen Rogerts and his son-in-law, Major Lewin. The party had a rough trip crossing the channel but the aged general felt no ill effects and went through with his program on the continent. In fact, he was about to return home, when his death occurred.

ENGLAND TO HELP CANADIAN INDUSTRIES

An instance of the energy and determination with which Great Britain is setting about the work of capturing for the British Empire the foreign trade of Germany, is contained in a letter to the Canadian Press from Mr. H. Hodder, the secretary of the British Empire Industrial League, 55 and, 56 Chancery Lane, London, W.C. This league, which includes in a distinguished list of vice-presidents the name of Sir William Van Horne, and of the Mayors of London, York, Bristol, Belfast, Cardiff and Hull, wishes to announce through the press of the Dominion that it will be glad to hear from Canadian manufacturers requiring additional working capital for the purpose of enlarging their factories that they may increase their output, and will do all in its power to help them to secure the financial support desired. By united action of this sort the Council of the League are convinced that a considerable impetus, and much effective aid, can be given to Canadians in their efforts to develop their industries and expand the export trade of the Dominion.

In the letter in which he extends this invitation to Canadian manufacturers, Mr. Hodder briefly reviews the outlook, and holds that Canadian industry is bound ultimately to benefit greatly as a result of the war. Already, he says, a re-arrangement of the commercial relations of the globe is under way, and in this re-arrangement caused by the war, the Panama Canal will be of great assistance. People only dimly understand, he states, of what incalculable value this will be to the world at large and Western Canada in particular.

REDCLIFF SCHOOL BOARD DISPOSES OF DEBENTURE

Department of Education Makes Satisfactory Sale--Date Set For The Annual Meeting Ask Council For More Money

At a meeting of the school board held last evening the chairman announced that the department of education at Edmonton had been successful in disposing of the town's school debentures to a Chicago firm.

A telegram was read from the deputy minister of education to the effect that the Redcliff school debentures had been sold to bear interest at 6 per cent. and that forms are now being printed and will be forwarded in about ten days for execution.

This was accepted by the trustees.

The usual business was then proceeded with. The following accounts were read and ordered to be paid:

Alberta School Supply Co., supplies $13.50.

Atlas Lumber Co., lumber, $22.70.

Redcliff Review, paper, $7.65.

Sherwin-Nicholson, supplies, $6.00.

Redcliff Livery, cess pool, gravel, etc., $111.00.

On motion of Messrs. Hayes and Nicholson the date for the annual meeting of the school district was set for Nov. 30, in the Empress theatre, at the same time as the town annual meeting.

Moved by A. J. Nicholson, seconded by L. Barber, that the secretary be instructed to write the council asking for $1,500 in addition to the $3,900 already asked for, to be paid over before Dec. 23rd.

On motion of Messrs. Nicholson and Hayes, the secretary's salary was ordered paid.

Moved by A. J. Nicholson, seconded by Mr. Hayes, that all new pupils starting school must start within two weeks after the opening of school after Midsummer, Christmas and Easter holidays.

Moved by Trustee Barber, seconded by Trustee Hayes, that from the 15th of Nov. to the 15th of March, the school open at 9.30 in the morning.

The principal was instructed to purchase lumber and tools and have benches placed in the basement for the convenience of the children.

LITTLE MARY HARBERT DIES FROM ACCIDENT

Little Mary Harbert, mention of whose accident we made in our last issue, died on Wednesday morning from the effects of her wound. Although everything possible was done to relieve her suffering it was of no avail, and the unfortunate child passed away on Wednesday morning. The funeral takes place this afternoon from her parents' residence, 5th street. The deceased was a bright little girl of six years of age, and was a favorite among her playmates. The loving parents are heartbroken over their bereavement, and while they have the sympathy of the community their real consolation will come from Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto Me."

PROGRAMME FOR NEXT WEEK

Monday—Laymen's Missionary Banquet in Reid's Hall.

Tuesday—Concert in Empress Theatre. Proceeds for Relief Fund.

Girls' Club meets.

Wednesday—Meeting in school to arrange for night classes.

Thursday—Conservative convention in the Hat.

Whist drive in English church parish hall.

Mr. L. W. McBean, of Medicine Hat, was in town yesterday on business.

Mr. John Ellis and family have moved into town from the ranch for the winter.

John Turnbull, who has been foreman on the C.N.R. grade, left today for Edmonton.

As no move has as yet been made to prepare for the annual uBrns' banquet some of the Scotchmen in town are getting anxious. A meting should be held soon to appoint committees and lay necessary plans.

Mrs. Lawrence Gott Passes Away Suddenly

One of the saddest deaths we have been called upon to record for some time was that which occurred last Sunday, when Mrs. Lawrence Gott was suddenly called to her long rest. Deceased had always enjoyed good health until two weeks ago, when she suddenly took ill during accouchement, after which complications set in and she gradually grew weaker till death relieved her of all earthly sufferings.

Deceased, whose maiden name was Jeanie Allen, was born in Scotland thirty one years ago, and came to Canada three years ago. Last December she was married and came to Redcliff, where she has resided ever since. During her stay here she made a host of warm friends, to all of whom her sudden death was a severe shock.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. G. L. Gordon, and the funeral took place from Robertson's undertaking parlors to Medicine Hat cemetery. A large number of friends accompanied the remains to their last resting place.

To the young husband, upon whom the heavy hand of sore affliction has been laid, the heartfelt sympathy of the citizens goes out in this his hour of sorrow.

COL. SISSONS IS TO COMMAND ALBERTA CAVALRY

Col. Sissons, of Medicine Hat, has been appointed commandant of the Mounted Alberta regiment, and was in Calgary during the week making arrangements for forming the regiment. It is expected that recruiting will commence at an early date. In all probability one squadron of the mounted brigade will be mobilized and trained at Medicine Hat.

According to reports every officer of the 21st Hussars in the Hat has signified his desire to be attached to the cavalry force. As all cannot be taken on as officers some have resigned their commissions and will go as privates.

Conservatives Will Meet in the Hat

The Conservatives of the new federal constituency of Medicine Hat will hold a big rally in aMdicine Hat on Thursday, Nov. 26th.

In the morning there will be the regular annual meeting, when officers for the constituency will be elected. In the afternoon a convention will be held, when a candidate for the forthcoming general election will be selected.

In the evening there will be a mass meeting, when some of the leading men of the party will be present. Among those from outside who will speak at both the convention and the evening, will be R. B. Bennett, of Calgary.

As the newly formed constituency is a very large one and delegates are expected from all corners of it, a big meeting is anticipated.

ALBERTA MAKES GOOD SHOWING FOR 1914

People who talk blue ruin, hard times and a few other things not in keeping with the war-time slogan, "business as usual," will be mightily surprised to learn that Alberta's farm products for 1914 have an estimated value of nearly $8,000,000 in excess of the value of the products for 1913, an increase of over 10 per cent.

In 1913 the value of farm products amounted to $68,000,000. In 1914, the estimate goes to show that the $65,000,000 mark will be considerably exceeded.

And that is not all. The farmers have been raising some livestock and the increase in the value of livestock on the farms is over $8,000,000 in excess of the increase of the stock in the farmers hands in 1913. This amount with the excess in value of products as shown above shows the farmers of this province to be some $16,000,000 better off than one year ago.

The value of livestock in the hands of farmers of the province at present is estimated at $11,000,000, making the livestock industry the backbone of the agricultural development of Alberta.

REDCLIFF LADIES ORGANIZE CLUB

Will Meet Every Tuesday and Do Fancy Work--Social Hour After -- First Meeting Next Tuesday.

A meeting of the young ladies of the town was held at the home of Mrs. D. Black last Monday evening for the purpose of discussing the advisability of forming a girls' club in town. After some discussion it was decided to organize, and what will be known as the Girls' M. U. M. club was formed.

It is the intention of the club to meet every Tuesday evening at the homes in town, and after doing fancy work for the hope boxes will spend a social hour.

The girls have taken as their motto "A good time during hard times." The members now on the roll are:

A. White, E. White, E. Crough, M. Acheson, G. Timmons, C. Trimble, J. Dicky, J. Allen, A. Wagstaff, B. Chatterton, R. Cameron, S. Gordon, M. Sherwin, J. Black, V. Black, G. Levera, A. Woodcock, E. Fairbairn, M. Gibson, J. McKellar, C. McKay, M. Cosgrove, M. Weir, A. Ogden.

The first meeting of the Girls' M. U. M. club will be held at Miss Timmon's and Miss Trimble's apartments on Tuesday evening, November 24, at eight o'clock sharp.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

Since we started issuing government relief orders from this office, orders for over $2,000.00 have been issued for groceries and feed. This, together with the C.N.R. work will be a big assistance to the farmers of the district.

Mr. Othit, ordinance officer of the cadet movement in this province, was in town this week. Some time ago a rifle corps was formed here and rifles supplied by the government. Mr. Othit was here to collect the rifles, which are to be used at the present time for military purposes.

C. W. Gough has decided to open up a skating rink in town this winter. It will be located on two vacant lots on 4th street which are already enclosed by a high board fence. It will be flooded as soon as the cold weather sets in. He intends making a big reduction in prices.

Forty-six soldiers of the first Canadian contingent who had been rejected as ineligible, presumably on account of German or Austrian nationality, arrived in Glasgow Wednesday under an armed guard of Canadian troops. They were embarked on a Donaldson liner for Canada.

* * *

Mr. Roads, a farmer living just west of town, has received word from Frank Jeffrey, one of the British reservists who left Redcliff at the outbreak of the war. Jeffrey joined his old regiment, the Royal Warwickshires immediately on arriving in England, and in October left for France, where he at once went into action. Most of his old pals whom he had formed with in India were already at the front and had engaged in some of the fiercest fighting in which a number of them were killed. Mr. Roads also has a brother at the front.

Messrs. J. Hitchen and A. Lang are at present getting up a musical programme for a concert to be given in the Empress theatre on Tuesday evening, the 24th. The programme will be made up of local talent, and we are informed that several novel stunts will be introduced. A collection will be taken up and the proceeds will go to the relief fund. As these young men are going to considerable trouble and the proceeds are for a worthy cause, they should have a crowded house.

* * *

J. A. McIntyre, who is one on the officials in connection with the C. N. R. construction here, left for his home in Calgary Wednesday evening. Mac is so much impressed with Redcliff and its promising outlook for the future that he is seriously thinking of moving his family here to reside. He siad as a matter of fact he did not like to leave. He put it off as long as he possibly could. While here he made a number of friends, all of whom will be glad to see him back on the job again next May.

WORK ON C.N.R. GRADE STOPPED FOR WINTER

Have 15 Miles Graded and Ready for Rails -- Will Start Work Again Early Next Spring--Over $25,000 Spent on Work to Date.

Owing to the cold weather of last Saturday and Sunday, work on the construction of the C.N.R. grade through Redcliff has been discontinued for the winter.

Ever since work started on this grade the weather has been ideal for outside work, and as a result great progress was made. At the time work was stopped about seventeen miles of the line was turned up and about fifteen miles of grade completed and ready for laying the rails.

Continuous work has been supplied for slightly over three hundred men and teams, and in the neighborhood of $25,000.00 has been paid out for wages and provisions. All of this money was distributed among the nomestenders and merchants of the Redcliff and Medicine Hat district.

We are informed by Mr. Miller, who has had charge of the work, that he feels satisfied that if any work at all is done next spring this branch will be the first to start operations. He anticipates that work will be started again about the first of next May.

Mr. Hill, the chief divisional engineer, with a staff of about fifteen, still have their camp on the grade, and will remain here for six or eight weeks getting things in shape for starting next spring. It is their intention to survey the grade right through to the Red Deer river.

The work done on this grade, furnishing as it did employment for homesteaders, farmers and laborers who were badly in need of it, has been a good thing for the district and the money set in circulation will go a long way towards relieving what would otherwise have been a serious situation.

Mr. Walter Miller, who had charge of the work, displayed no small amount of fairness in the manner in which he distributed out the work but the provisions required for the camps. We hope to see him back on the job again next spring.

Laymen's Missionary Movement Banquet

Four of the most prominent religious leaders of Canada will speak at the Laymen's Missionary Movement banquet to be held next Monday evening at 6.45 o'clock at Reid's hall. Rev. R. P. Mackay, D.D., secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions; Mr. D. M. Rose, secretary of the Anglican Laymen's Movement; a Baptist and a Methodist representative, will be present to speak to the men. This same team has been in Calgary just recently and will jump to Regina in a few days after leaving here. They are all specialists in their line and are all very able speakers. The great purpose of this movement is to awaken men to the fact that the work of extending God's Kingdom is a man's job. It is strictly interdenominational in its character and should appeal to every live man in town. Business men get behind this and push. Show these men that our city is still alive and active.

Here is what we have to offer: a roast chicken banquet, good music by the orchestra, and four live speakers with a real message for men. All for 35c. Can you beat it?

Remember the time and place: Monday evening at 6.45 sharp, at Reid's hall.

FIFTEEN CANADIAN SOLDIERS MEET THEIR WORST ENEMY

There have been 15 new casualties among the Canadian contingent. But the casualties are due to the common enemy of all mankind and not to the Germans or Austrians. Too much British hospitality and too much firewater taken by some of the Canadian troops while on leave from camp in London or elsewhere have resulted in fifteen privates being dismissed from the ranks.

PROMISING PROSPECTS

It may be a little early to start making predictions for next year's crops, but since we started issuing government, relief orders from this office we have come in contact with almost every farmer in this district, and from them we learn that never before were fall conditions more favorable than at the present time. The heavy rains and frequent snow flurries in the early fall have put the ground in excelent condition for plowing and have furnished an abundance of moisture which will make a good start for next spring. The weather for the past few weeks has been ideal and as a result much more than the usual fall plowing has been done. Almost every farmer informs us that he has more land ready for crop this fall than ever before, and we feel it is a safe estimate to say that there will be from twenty to thirty per cent. more land in crop next year than ever before in this district.

Although as we said in the beginning, it is a little soon to venture estimates on next year's crop, yet such a feeling of optimism prevails among the farmers themselves, we too, feel that with even fair weather conditions next season a bumper crop is in store. Besides this, grain men are predicting $1.50 to $2.00 wheat for 1915.

It is estimated that the cost of raising a bushel of wheat is 50c, and the average price is around 65c. If then the price next year should go even to $1.40 the price received would be equivalent to six ordinary crops, and if it reaches this figure, and the crop is up to normal the average farmer will clean up his indebtedness and have a snug balance to his credit in the bank.

With these promising possibilities ahead several farmers who have called on us lately have drawn our attention to the necessity of having a grist mill in Redcliff, or if we are not able to secure a mill we should at least take steps to have an elevator erected in town. An elevator would not only be a source of great convenience to the farmers and facilitate shipping operations, but would attract them to our town, as most of them state they would rather come here than go to other places if we only had the accommodation. An effort might be made either to try to induce some of the milling companies or the Farmers' Association to erect an elevator here. The latter is assisted by the provincial government.

A move should be made in this direction as soon as posible as it is a matter of great importance to the town.

A SAD STATE OF AFFAIRS

Daniel Webster once said: "Education to accomplish the ends of good government should be universally diffused. Open the doors of the schoolhouse to all the children in the land. Let no man have the excuse of poverty for not educating his own offspring. Place the means of education within his reach, and if they remain in ignorance of it be it his own reproach."

During the past few months we have heard and read a great deal about what the provincial government is doing by way of helping schools throughout the province during the present difficulties experienced in the rural districts in financing them.

It has been announced on the authority of the minister of education that no schools need close up because of the financial depression, and that his department would guarantee teachers' salaries.

In view of this fact it was a great surprise to us to learn the other day that the school at Bowell had not been opened since the midsummer holidays. The reason given to us was that the district could not afford to pay a teacher. Because of this there are from fifteen to twenty children in and around Bowell at the present time being deprived of the most important thing in their young lives—an education.

It is hard to believe that such a state of affiars as this could exist in the heart of a civilized country in the 20th century, especially when the government has signified its willingness to do everything possible to obviate this disgraceful condition.

As a result of this school being closed we know of one farmer in that district who took enough interest in his children to see that they did get an education. In order to do so a happy home had to be broken up the mother taking two children of school age and moving to Redcliff with them, where she had to rent a house, and the father staying on the farm to look after it.

We are informed that there was a board of school trustees for that school district and that as far as is known they are still in office.

If these trustees will make no move to have this school re-opened it behooves parents of the district who have children of school age—in fact it behooves every true citizen who has the interest of the country at heart—to bring this matter to the attention of the department of education at once.

MR. JAMIESON RETIRES

The retirement of Mr. C. F. Jamieson from the editorial chair of the Morning Times of Medicine Hat, will be a distinct loss not only to Medicine Hat and district, but also to the press of western Canada.

Mr. Jamieson has been editor of the Times ever since it branched out as a daily paper, and so well equipped was he for the position that at the time of his retirement he was considered among the ablest editors of western Canada.

Although born in Nova Scotia, Mr. Jamieson has travelled extensively throughout the Dominion, thus gaining a thorough knowledge of its affairs in all lines. This experience with his retentive memory has enabled him to write for his paper in a most interesting and convincing manner, and has made his editorials of chief interest in the paper. Although the Times is what is known as a party paper, Mr. Jamieson always dealt with public questions in a fair as well as fearless manner, and he has always been as ready to comment a virtue as condemn a fault in a political opponent. This fact, probably more than any other, was the secret of his success as an editor, and was also the reason his editorial columns were read with equal interest by both parties.

The vacancy caused by his retirement will be a hard one to fill, and The Review wishes Mr. Jamieson as great success in his new undertaking as he has attained in the one from which he has just retired.

LAYMEN'S BANQUET

As was announced in our local columns last week the three congregations in town are making arrangements to hold a laymen's missionary banquet here on Nov. 23rd.

The laymen's movement has, during the past few years, been making remarkable progress, and has awakened an enthusiastic interest in church and missionary work among laymen of all denominations. Among those interested in this movement at the present time are men who are leaders in all branches of the business world, and the affairs are being handled as a business proposition. Laymen's banquets have been and are still being held in all towns and cities of any importance throughout the dominion, and we trust the men of Redcliff, young and old, will turn out in large numbers to the banquet to be held here.

Eminent speakers, representing all denominations, will be here for the occasion and we are sure that a very profitable as well as pleasant evening is in store.

THE PASSING OF LORD ROBERTS

In the death of Lord Roberts has passed one of the choice spirits of the nation. Great as a warrior, he was even greater as a man. By marked ability and distinguished courage he attained to the highest position in the British army and passed out of life adored by the soldiers and beloved by the people.

It is not often that a great military character leaves such a memory. Lord Roberts' death has naturally, under the circumstances surrounding it, created a profound impression, nowhere more so than amongst the tens of thousands of Canadian soldiers now under arms in the mother country. Less than a month ago the greatest and most war-worn of the empire's soldiers was at Salisbury, his small sturdy little figure being least conspicuous of all in the group which gathered around him save that no man in the group had such a row of ribbons on his breast.

It is no exaggeration to say that "Bobs" had a particularly warm corner in his heart for the Canadian militiamen ever since that day in June, 1900, when he sat on his horse in Pretoria's market square and saw pass in front of him the survivors of Paardeburg and others who had followed him so long and faithfully.

"In the words of Sir John French:

"It seems fitter to the ending of the life of a great soldier, that he should have passed away in the midst of the troops he loved so well and within sound of the guns."

A SERIOUS OFFENSE

Last week we made mention of a case which came up before his worship Mayor Bott and Magistrate Henderson, one of the charges being that of resisting arrest and interfering with the police in the discharge of his duty. For the benefit of those who may not know, we would remind them that this is a very serious charge and one that is punishable by a sentence of two year's imprisonment. As the defendant in the case above referred to was a young man who had previously had a good record in town the magistrates were disposed to deal leniently with him, and after impressing upon him the seriousness of the crime allowed him to go on suspended sentence, after fining him on the first charge of being drunk and disorderly.

It is very important, especially at the present time, that our policemen be given every possible assistance. Their powers are almost unlimited and in the discharge of thier duties they have the whole British Empire behind them.

In the case in question Mayor Bott gave the defendant a warning and stated that if any similar cases came before him in the future they would be severely dealt with.

At a very important meeting of the mayors of the United States and Canada, which was held in Philadelphia last week, questions affecting municipal organization were very thoroughly discussed. The mayors leaned strongly to municipal ownership, and were practically unanimous that cities should have the power to municipalize public utilities.

TO INVESTIGATE MINES IN NORTH SEA

An effort is being made by the United States government to ascertain officially who is responsible for the placing of mines in the North Sea. This is one result of representations made to the state department by the governments of Denmark, Holland, Norway and Sweden that their marine commerce with United States has been paralyzed by the placing of mines outside of territorial waters in violation of the Hague treaties.

The United States was asked to join with these governments in an effort to have the warring European powers abate this danger to navigation, but meanwhile the enquiry is being made to determine the responsibility for the mine laying and to what governments any representation should be addressed.

BRITISH CASUALITIES

The British casulties in the war up to October 31 were approximately 87,000 men of all ranks. This estimate was given by Premier Asquith in the house of commons in reply to a question by Edward T. John, Liberal member of the house from East Denbighshire.

A PURSE "FOUND"

Among the advertisements in a paper appeared the following: "The gentleman who found a purse with money in Queen's Park is requested to forward it to the address of the loser, as he is recognized."

A few days afterward the reply was inserted: "The recognized gentleman who picked up a purse in Queen's Park requests the loser to call at his home."

The first of the lectures we spoke of in our last issue was given in Medicine Hat last Thursday by Professor W. A. R. Kerr. His subject was "The War Spirit in England." The same lecturer is to speak at Lethbridge, Pincher Creek, McLeod, Claresholm, High River and Okotoks. At each of these points a series of four lectures will be given during the winter. Redcliff should be in on this series. What's the matter with our school board getting busy?

WHEN YOU'RE SICK YOUR WAGES STOP

You know what that means—misery—worry—big bills—debt!

You know you can't afford to get sick. Keeping in good health means food and clothing for you and your family. It is up to you to take care of yourself. It is up to you, whenever you don't feel right, to take something to make you right, to strengthen you, build you up, ward off worse sickness—protect you and your family. That thing we have in Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. In offering it to you, we protect you against money-risk, by personally promising you that if it does not restore your health, we will give back your money without word or question. We believe it is the best builder of health, energy and strength you can get. It is helping many of your neighbors. If it don't help you, we will give back your money.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is composed principally of pure Olive Oil and the Hypophosphites. Each has long been endorsed by successful physicians. Here they are for the first time combined. The result is a remarkable nerve, blood and strength-building remedy that is both food and medicine. For all who are nervous, run-down and debilitated—no matter what the cause; for old people; for convalescents; for puny children. We know of nothing that will give health and strength as quickly as Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. It is a real builder of good blood, strong muscles, good digestion. Pleasant to take, it contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. If you don't feel well, economize both money and strength by beginning today to take Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. Sold only at the Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00.

The Rexall Store

There is a Rexall Store in nearly every town and city in the United States, Canada and Great Britain. There is a different Rexall Remedy for nearly every ordinary human ill—each especially designed for the particular ill for which it is recommended.

FRENCH HAVE BIG ARMY IN RESERVE

The Wall street Journal publishes an article from Paris which was mailed to the United States in order to escape the censor that declares the French army consists not of 3,000,000 men, but double that number.

"Of these six million," says the article, "one half has been under fire. The remaining three million thave not left our garrisons. Very few people in France realize that General Joseph Joffre holds this tremendous army in reserve. Every man of this three million is under three years and fully trained, adequately equipped for battle, ready to march at a moment's notice.

Opposed to the French 3,000,000 that have been under fire are not 1,000,000 Germans, but 2,500,000—not thirty army corps but fifty-six.

"With half a million British troops and about 100,000 Belgians the Allies have on the western battle-front 3,600,000 men against 2,500,000 German, but owing to General Joffre's careful nursing of the troops, the forces actually on the firing line are roughly equal.

"Of the French 3,000,000 one half are doing fighting, while the other half relieve them in the trenches and fill the gaps caused by casualties."

CRUISER GLASGOW IS HEARD FROM

The British cruiser Glasgow, which was one of the vessels engaged with the German squadron off the coast of Chile, November 1, arrived in Rio de Janeiro. The damage caused by the German shell fire is plainly visible on the cruiser.

The British Admiralty's statement on the sch fight off Chile said the Glasgow was engaged by both the Leipzig and Dresden, of the German squadron, while the Gneisenau and Scharnhorst were fighting the Good Hope and the Monmouth. It added, however, that the Glasgow was not extensively damaged and suffered few casualties.

After the battle, the Glasgow, accompanied by the transport Otranto, sailed south and passed through the Straits of Magelian to the Atlantic ocean.

NOVA SCOTIA HELPS BELGIANS

The Tremorvah, bearing Nova Scotia's gift to the suffering Belgianas, is the first relief ship to reach Rotterdam. The Belgian and French commissioners in charge of the transshipments of supplies to Belgium expressed astonishment at the completeness and diversity of the cargo.

Arrangements were made to send all the contributions into Belgium under protection.

HINTS ON FRYING FISH

There are three ways of preparing fish for frying, viz. firstly, dipping it in milk and flour; secondly, coating it with prepared batter; and thirdly, egging and crumbing. The last is considered the nicest, but is also the most expensive.

The pan used for frying should contain sufficient fat to thoroughly cover the fish. Dripping, lard, or oil can be used for frying purposes.

The fat must be quite hot—in fact, be smoking—before the fish is put in, so as to harden the outside, thus preventing the fat from entering into the fish, which would pollute the flavor and make it indigestable.

Only a small quantity of fish should be fried at a time, and the fat should be allowed to get thoroughly hot before the next lot is put in.

As soon as the fish is brown on both sides, drain it on paper or a cloth, so as to absorb all the fat. It should then be dished up on a folded paper and placed on a hot dish.

When the frying is ended, allow the fat to cool a little, strain it to remove any loose crumbs or bits of batter, and the fat will then be quite fit for future use.

A BY-LAW OF THE TOWN OF REDCLIFF TO PROVIDE FOR THE BORROWING OF $5,000.00 UPON DEBENTURES TO PAY FOR GRADING STREETS IN THE TOWN OF REDCLIFF.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the Town of Redcliff deem it necessary to grade certain streets in the Town of Redcliff.

AND WHEREAS it is estimated that to carry out the said works there will be required the sum of $5,000.00.

AND WHEREAS in order to carry into execution the said object it will be necessary for the said Council to issue debentures of the Corporation of the Town of Redcliff for the sum of $5,000.00, and the said Council has decided that the indebtedness thus created be paid at the end of ten years and bear interest at the rate of five per centum per annum.

AND WHEREAS it is expedient to create a Sinking Fund for the repayment of the said sum of $5,000.00, and that the annual amount to be levied on account of the Sinking Fund be paid annually by the Secretary-Treasurer of the Town to the Provincial Treasurer.

AND WHEREAS there is required to be raised in each and every year for five years the sum of $250.00 to pay the interest on the said amount and the sum of $923.13 to form a Sinking Fund for the payment of the principal money.

AND WHEREAS the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality according to the last revised assessment roll thereof is $5,000,000.00

AND WHEREAS the total existing debt of the Municipality outside of the debt for the current expenses of the year is the sum of $255,000.00, no part of which is in arrear.

AND WHEREAS it is expedient that this bylaw should take effect on the final passing thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, the Municipal Council of the Town of Redcliff enacts as follows:

1. That it shall be lawful for the Mayor and Secretary-Treasurer of the Town to borrow on the credit and security of the Town at large a sum or sums of money not exceeding in the sum of $5,000.00.

2. That the said sum shall be expended in Street Grading in the Town of Redcliff, and for the purpose of raising such loan debentures of not less than $100.00 each not to exceed in the aggregate the sum of $5,000.00 as aforesaid, shall be issued, each of which shall be payable at the end of five years, and that coupons shall be attached to the said debentures for the half-yearly interest thereon at the rate of five per centum per annum. And the said debentures and coupons shall be made payable at the holder's option at the Royal Bank of Canada, in the Town of Redcliff, Alberta, in the City of Toronto, Ontario, in the City of Montreal, Quebec, or in gold coin of the United States of America of the present standard of weight and fineness at the said Bank in New York City.

3. The said debentures shall be signed by the Mayor and Secretary-Treasurer of the Town of Redcliff, and sealed with the seal of the Corporation of the Town of Redcliff.

4. During the currency of the said debt there shall be raised annually by special rate over and above all other rates on all the rateable property of the Town of Redcliff the sum of $1,173.13, being the amount required to pay the interest on the said debt in each and every year and to form a Sinking Fund for the payment of the principal money at the end of the said period of five years.

5. That the Secretary-Treasurer of the Town of Redcliff shall pay the annual amount so to be levied on account of the Sinking Fund to the Provincial Treasurer annually.

6. This by-law shall take effect and come into force on the day of the final passing thereof.

CHAPTER XXII.

The End

Mrs. Comstock spilt salt at breakfast on the bread, tilted terrace of the Hotel Cecil. Ahead of her, a grey bulk showing faintly above the hilltop coast, was Gibraltar, to the left, a soft undulating sweep of Spanish hills, soft and a little behind her, the white jumble of Tangier, one silken green minaret rising from the pleasing chaos of white and blue.

The murmur of the awakened city came out to her and brought a little sense of exhilaration. Tangier was so much alive, so virile, so mysterious, so old—it was like a place in the Old Testament lit by electricity, a scrap you could imagine blaz-

lon with advertisements of absinthe plastered on the palace walls.

The sea was a gorgeous blue and amethyst. Far away on the horizon, a great steamer hull down, was making its way westward through the Straits. The sweet scent of mimosa came in soft puffs from a great golden bush near by.

She was alone on the terrace, but the table was laid for two. She had finished her breakfast, and her idle fingers played with a scrap of toast.

Her happiness was almost complete. For three months she had lived such a life as she had only pictured in her utmost exhilirated moments. The cities of the world which had existed for her only in pictures and in descriptions were now realities to her. Her feet had trod the floors of the Prado, had stood where Caesar stood in room had climbed the steep hill to the Gate of the Sun in Toledo, had walked under Mont Blanc, and had gone along the shaded pavements of Vienna.

She was perfectly happy, she told herself, yet inadvertently made a reservation. What that reservation was she did not put into words, and not even would it into thought. There was one little shadow.

She heard a firm footstep behind her and turned. It was her husband.

"Hello, you're early!" he said.

She smiled welcome to him and he took her hand.

He sat down on the other side of the table.

"I ordered my breakfast as I came," he said; "seeing I'm not hungry as I ought to be."

A look of alarm came into her eyes. "You're not ill?" she said, anxiously.

He smiled indulgently. "Oh, no, I'm not ill."

"The porter was telling me," she went on, speaking quickly, almost incoherently, "there has been typhoid in Tangier. Don't you think we had better go away? We could get my bags in time to catch the boat—"

He shook his head laughingly.

"Please don't worry, my world said people, just you and I!"

He did not trust himself to speak. He nodded.

The twirling of the cup became faster and more furious as she went on.

"It's very tempting," she half whispered, "to—to—and to forget the world over. It tempts me to wait till we have settled down again in England—"

He rose and threw open the door of the terrace and broke into a hundred pieces. She laughed and rose quickly. Her color came and went.

"But I am not going to wait!" she said.

TH: END.

JESSIE REMEMBERED

And the Worst of It Was That She insisted on Going into Particulars

Mrs. Goby had been in her new house a month when she received a call from Mrs. Toby. Mrs. Toby was accompanied by her five-year-old daughter, Jessie.

"What a beautiful house you have, Mrs. Goby!" said Mrs. Toby.

"Isn't it nice?"

"It is indeed," replied Mrs. Toby. "And, do you know, I intended calling on you a fortnight ago, but have been so busy."

"Oh, mamma," chimed in little Jessie, "you did come—"

"How dare you talk like that! Speak when you're spoken to," interrupted Mrs. Toby, coloring up.

Tears welled into the child's eyes, and Mrs. Toby sympathetically said: "There, don't cry, little dear. You must have been mistaken."

"I wasn't," blurted out Jessie. "Mamma knocked over as many times and then said to me: 'Come on, I suppose we shall have to go to the expense of getting tea in town.'"

The silence that followed was frigid.—London Tolegraph.

HEAD GOT BALD IN PLACES

Very Itchy. When Brushed, Dandruff All Over, Hair Came Out in Great Bunches. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Cured Head in Three Weeks.

15 Hallam St., Toronto, Ont.—"About two years ago the skin of my head became worse and scabs formed on it which made it bald in places. It was very itchy and gave me a tendency to scratch it which made it worse. I always had to wear my hat whether in the house at work or out. Whenever I brushed my hair there was the dandruff all over. The hair came out in great bunches until I was nearly bald on the crown of my head. I was under the doctor's care for six months and all to no avail. I tried——which made it worse than before. I tried several things after that but they were no good. After about three months this I had hardly any hair left when one day it happened to see the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I straightway sent for a sample. After first washing with the Cuticura Soap I applied some Cuticura Ointment and I could feel a great relief. After finishing the sample I went and got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. In three weeks time had stirred my head." (Signed) B. Horn, May 15, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them. A single set is often sufficient. Sold everywhere. For liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send post-card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A.

A Coal Mine One Hundred Years Ago

Up in Nova Scotia, 100 years ago, the settlers dropped a pioneer shaft with the aid of a pick and shovel and dug out enough coal to heat their little dwellings and to cook their food. Today those same mines, which then produced twenty or thirty tons a year, are sending about 350,000 tons of the best every twelve months. The pick and shovel and the hand-lowered bucket have been replaced by the air drill, giant powder and steam elevators, which drop 1,500 feet in to the bowels of the earth.

By their primitive means the settlers never reach a level below 150 feet. There was not much need of carrying the shafts any further, because coal was little used for anything but heat; in fact, there was no need for coal anywhere except where wood was scarce. The great industry of the Canadian province developed rapidly as soon as demands began to be made for the new fuel and now the output of the original settlers sits covered with a wave of vast machinery, the least of which has but recently brought the daily output up to 1,000 tons of the finest grades of bituminous coal that Nova Scotia now ships to all parts of the world, the black stones that help to make bearable the cold winters of pioneer days.

How Finger Prints Are Taken

There would seem to be an unfailing method of identifying every individual man, and that is by his finger prints. No two people, it is said, ever have exactly the same markings, and the Scotland Yard the police have a large file of finger-print impressions, and can turn up any one of them in a moment or two if they want to identify a prisoner. The method of taking these impressions is very simple, and any boy or girl can take finger-prints from his or her own fingers, or from friends and relatives. Take a tube of moist sepia paint, and squeeze a drop on to a plate or saucer. Then add a drop of water, and after mixing the sepia and water into a paste, press the finger upon the, using the finger half over, so as to ink the whole of the front of it. Then press the finger in the same way on a sheet of clean paper, and when it is removed the impression will be there.

Juniper Wood to Replace Cedar

After a long series of experiments conducted with the co-operation of four large manufacturers, the forest service of the department of agriculture has reached the decision that the juniper is the most available substitute for red cedar for use in pencil making. In pursuance of this, arrangements are now being made, by some of the largest companies, for timber rights in the juniper forests of New Mexico and other places. The supply of pencils of the finest quality amounts to 1,000,000 daily, while it requires 7,000,000 cubic feet of wood in year to allow for this production. The forest service and the manufacturers have been worried for some time, the lumber industry because the supply of cedar is diminishing rapidly. Hard woods could be used before the fact that few pencil users ever carry sharp knives.

Practical People

A tourist found himself in a German village far out of the beaten track of his itinerary. There was, however, a garden tree in the village square. The tree was plastered over with advertisements like this "Get Your House Furnishings at Ober's," "Engagement Rings—a Marvelous Assortment at Schilling's, the Watchmaker and Jeweller," "Kitchen Utensils at Muller's," "Just the Place For Your Wedding Breakfast—the Little Dining Room in the Post Office," and so forth. The tourist read the advertisements attentively.

"And why," asked he, turning to a villager who stood by, "why is this tree used as a billboard?"

"Stupid man, that in the world," replied the villager. "All the country couples come here and cut their names in the bark of this tree. There right before them are the addresses of the very people they'll need to set 'em up housekeeping once they decide to get married."—New York Post.

Joan of Arc Statue

The base of a statue of Joan of Arc that is to be erected in New York will be formed of stones from the foundation of the Rouen dungeon, where the heroine was incarcerated. The stones were brought from a French insurance company after the French government had failed to buy the Rouen property to preserve it in memory of the heroine of France. More than $25,000 has been raised for the statue to be erected in New York.

CANADA'S BANKING SYSTEM SHOWS UP WELL IN CRISIS

Government Behind the Banks in Effective Preparations to Meet All Demands

The financial strain of threatened and actual war, which has been so severely felt in other countries, is being admirably met in Canada.

At a conference early this week between the Finance Minister and representatives of the Canadian Bankers' Association, the whole situation was carefully considered, and effective arrangements made to meet any unusual demands on the Canadian currency and banking system.

The provision of most importance to the general public is the announcement of the Minister of Finance authorizing payments in Bank Notes instead of in gold or Dominion Notes.

In other words, the public may continue the usual custom of paying money in "bills" as we call them, of $5, $10, $20 or other denomination issued by our Chartered Banks, as well as in bills issued by the Canadian Government. Tradesmen, transportation companies and all public offices will accept these bills, and people, if they have always done, and so far as our currency is considered the war might not exist.

The government's readiness to give the Banks any support they may require comes as a further proof that unusually strong position in reserves of gold and silver they have at present, a position which might be felt by depositors. In times of war, as in times of peace, the best place for private savings is undoubtedly in the hand of our Banks.

How Flowers Are Fertilized

In order that fruit may come on our fruit trees and bushes it is necessary that the blossoms be fertilized, and this is carried out either by insects, such as bees, or by the wind, which blows the pollen from one blossom to another or blows the various flowers together. In greenhouses, however, where some of the choicest fruits, such as peaches, are grown, this natural fertilization is impossible; there are probably neither bees nor wind to be found. In order that the fertilization may be affected, the gardener takes either a camelhair brush or a rabbit's tail, passes that out of each reach, a rabbit's fluffy tail to the end of a stick. With this the pollen is collected from one flower and dusted off on to another very gently, and without injury to the blossom.

The enthusiastic angler was telling his friends about his approaching fishing trip to a lake in Colorado which he had in contemplation.

"And there are trout out there?" asked one friend.

"Thousands of 'em!" replied the angler.

"Will they bite easily?" asked another friend.

"Will they? Why, they're absolutely vicious. A man has to hide behind a tree to bait a hook."

A Missouri farmer whose son was in the constant fear a position under the government, but who had been repeatedly turned down, said:

"Well, it's his luck, but Joe has missed that civil service again. It looks like they just won't have him! Joe's a mighty unlucky boy.

"Oh, he was short on spellin' and geography and missed a good deal of 'em domestic."

"What's he going to do about it?"

"Oh, I dunno. I reckon he'll have to go back to teachin' school for a livin'."

"I hain't.

"All kinds of vegetables in abundance from your own garden, and fruit cultivated berries picked every morning?"

"Say, mister, if I had all them things, do this farm I wouldn't have to take boarders."

"Then your wife didn't enjoy her trip to Europe?"

"No; the minute she saw that rushing water she began to wonder if she couldn't come up from there and left the faucet running."—Pittsburg Post.

Profane Dancing

Harriet Beecher Stowe records that she had gathered she and her friends used to dance a jig entitled "Go to the Devil and Shake Yourself." It was a favorite dance, and it then transpired that the lady, who was somewhat deaf, thought the grace had asked her what dance was then being played. This incident occurred in 1795, and twenty years later Crabbe, in his "Tales," animadverts on a bookseller for stocking the music of a dance with such a profane title.—Manchester Courier.

Tallest Flagpole and Largest Flag

The tallest single-piece wooden flagpole ever erected has been placed in the Panama-Pacific exposition grounds at San Francisco. It is trimmed in the shape of a hexagon, from the base to the top, and weighs 35 tons. When erected it was imbedded in a reinforced concrete foundation, and anchored similarly. After the cement had set, all of the guy cables were removed, leaving the great shaft without a bracing other than its base. Three large derricks were used in lifting it into place. A spiked ball, weighing 630 pounds, and measuring 10 feet over all, was placed at the apex. When the exposition is opened the pole will fly a 45-foot American flag.

This exposition flag, however, is almost minute compared with the flag, 150 feet long and 75 feet wide, which headed a procession of nearly 5,000 persons at the flag day exercises at St. Louis. It was borne by 250 men and boys through the principal streets of the city. In order to keep the flag from trailing in the dust, Boy Scouts took their places beneath the corners and supported the weight on props. At Jefferson Memorial the flag was hoisted, more than covering the front of the main portion of the building. It has been suggested that this flag be sent to San Francisco to be hoisted on the exposition flagstaff on "Missouri Day."

Bagpipes Under Other Names

Bagpipes are among the oldest of musical instruments, for in slightly different forms they were known as the Chinese, Assyrians, Greeks and Romans, centuries before Christ. They figure upon a coin of Nero. In modern times no country can claim a monopoly of the instrument, for the Breton "bignon," the German "sackpfeife" and the French "cornemeure" are all bagpipes under another name.

The Sea-Horse Family

Visitors to the Children's museum, Brooklyn, have recently been entertained by the graceful movements of some sea-horses swimming in a salt water aquarium. They are fish, but they look like knights of the chessboard as they nod their heads to each other.

Their horse-like heads end in a mouth like the end of a pipe. The sea-horse watches a tiny shrimp until it is within reach. Then, with a sudden darting motion, accompanied by a distinct click, it expands the mouth-pipe and sucks it over the shrimp, which is quickly drawn it on the current of the water produced by the suction.

"No other fish," writes Miss Anna Botsford Comstock in Nature Work, "has the strange prehensile tail, but the sea-horse this organ seems to be necessary. Apparently anything that the aquarium does not contain any weeds or other objects for the sea-horse to cling to, the creature will lock their tails, and swim about as though at play.

"The male fish takes all the care of the young. The female puts the eggs into his pouch or pocket situated near the base of the tail. Here the eggs hatch and the young develop until able to take care of themselves. When the male expels them from the pouch."

Meeting Mrs. Spider

In "Insect Biographies With Pen and Camera" the author pictures the flight of Mrs. Spider by the wire entered Mrs. Spider's parlor:

It is struggling to escape from the unexpected net which in some mysterious manner has suddenly enveloped it! The creature of terrible aspect hastily rushes out upon it. Right head-like eyes glare wildly upon the victim. Fangs, hairy and bristly, and finger-like palpus on each side of this appalling face waves and flourishes in the air, ready to grasp the first accessible quivering with malignant glee. Then one of those powerful and clawed feet is stretched toward the helpless prisoner, and the threads that hold the web are suddenly tightened up as the monster pulls them together. Then the spinnerets elect a shower of silken strands over the fly, and it is spun round and round on the threads till it is completely hidden in its new envelope, still active, in silken bonds.

Wrong Sentiment Stops

Mary Johnson in her book, "Hagar" has Mrs. Green, one of the characters, reply to the gentleman who said she could make money by saying: "It ain't so easy for women to make money. There's more ways they can't than they can. It's what they call 'sentiment' fights them. Sentiment it's what they call being ridiculous, but it draws the line at their getting money for it."

Carried Black Bear 10 Miles

Carrying a black bear which had been captured in his trap ten miles up the Jordan river, J. H. S. Munro reached Revelstoke one evening in May, having made the ten mile trip in eight hours. The bear was trapped and shot on Cottonwood slide on the Jordan river. It measured over seven feet from tip to tip and weighed 163 pounds. Mr. Munro packed the entire bear a distance of ten miles over a rough trail, on his back, a remarkable feat of endurance. He was accompanied on his trip by F. Tillman who secured some good snapshots of the bear alive in the trap. The clubs was deep black and one of the most perfect ever secured in that vicinity. The mayor of Revelstoke purchased the same and has had it mounted life size.

Garden Plot Yields Strange Crop

The students and pupils at the St. Paul, Minnesota, Normal school recently built a great relief map of the United States in the school yard. Both instructors and students pitched in and raised mountains and indicated seas on the forty by sixty-foot and-twenty-foot plot. The classes in arithmetic found many problems in marking off the boundaries by scale and in determining areas.

With rakes and shovel, shore lines, river basins, and mountain ranges were brought into relief on the predetermined scale of five inches to a mile. Developing each square with regard to its neighbor demanded team work and many references to charts. Many problems for the geography classes were easily solved with the map.

Trapping a Coyote

The coyote is one of the wisest and hardest of all fur bearing animals to trap. He delights in digging up traps, springing them, carrying the bait and otherwise disturbing the set without getting caught; his sense of smell is so developed that the trapper has to build a fire on the set after the traps have been properly placed. Throw in a few pieces of bacon rinds, chicken bones or, better yet, pieces of meat that a dog would eat, coyote habitually searches about campfires for stray bits of meat and is therefore trained to be satisfied with the traces of the set, eliminates the tracks and smell of a human being. The dog that is being used will attract him from a long distance. He is much too wily to walk into the trap thus disguised with the remnant of a camp-fire than any other unless you are a trapper literally surrounded with traps with a severe winter on and no other carcasses within miles.—W. F. Wilson.

Artistic Temperament Cured

It will be welcome news to the myriads of admirers to hear that the noble artist Titiens "used to suffer terribly from the artistic temperament" but has left a strong desire to "murder anything that hangs." How Titiens was ultimately cured of the habit Mr. Ganz relates in his reminiscences. He was playing at supper after a concert in a provincial town when the manager made some remark which annoyed her. At once she took the first thing that came to hand, a soda water bottle and flung it at him, but unfortunately she was sitting at the table with his back to the window. The bottle passed through the window and nearly killed a casual passerby. This, said Titiens, gave her a shock from which she was completely cured of her failing."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Birds

The first "birds" were not much like those of the present time. The pterodactyl, supposed to be the pioneer of bird life, was a reptile of terrible aspect and great spears at the hinges of the wings and a mouth full of sharp, white teeth. The pterodactyl did not sing, and could we have seen him we would not have felt like singing ourselves. Then came the birds of the archaeopteryx, so bird-ugly that they were called "half-bird." Then the birds of the carboniferous jungles. The singers, in all probability, did not greatly edify the human race.—New York American.

Hands That Make Beauty

The father of Saint Gaudens, the sculptor, was a bohemian and put into his son enthusiasms into making a good boot that his son put into modeling statues. Millinery appears on paintings and sculptures, but just as many millions are spent on other products of the human hand and head. They may not be classed as works of art, yet they are the beautiful handicrafts of women. The products of the cabinet makers of the eighteenth century, the weaving of the Hindu men and women since the days of the Arabian Nights, the laces and tapestries worked by peasant girls, nuns or queens, the creations of the potter, the brasszmonger, the bronze-caster, the jeweler and the bookbinder were wrought by joyful workers and millionaires compete with kings to possess them.—Boston Globe.

Pigs Running at Large a Nuisance

A great many complaints come to hand regarding difficulties between neighbors because of pigs being allowed to run at large.

It does not appear to be generally known that the Legislature of 1913 enacted a law to meet such cases. It is known as an "Act for Restraining Dangerous and Mischievous Animals" which reads in part as follows:

"On information made on oath before a justice of the peace that the accused owns or has in his possession any cross or dangerous or notoriously breechy or mischevious animal or animals, and that he said animal or animals are not confined or restrained in such a manner as to protect the public from injury or loss, such justice may, when the owner of such animal or animals is known, issue a summons directed to such person of persons stating the matter of complaint and requiring such accused person or persons to appear before him at a certain time and place therein stated to answer such complaint, and upon conviction on the evidence of two credible witnesses other than the complainant the justice may make an order, with or without costs requiring the accused to confine or restrain such animal or animals in such a manner as to the justice may appear necessary."

Most justices held, and the Attorney eGneral's Department approves, that one of the things that owuld cause an animal to be termed "mischievous" is that it has been known to break through, jump over, or crawl under a lawful fence.

It will be observed therefore, that in order to avail oneself of the protection intended to be given by this Act, the land whereon an animal is trespassing be surrounded by such a fence. It is not, however, necesary that the entire farm be so enclosed. If the barnyard, the poultry yard or the garden issurrounded by a lawful fence and animals are found trespassing therein they may be proceeded against under this act.

CANADIANS AT THE FRONT

Three Canadian officers, two identified with artillery regiments and one with the engineers have been in the firing line for the past week at Ypres and Dixmuiden. They returned to London Friday night and Saturday three more from Salisbury Plain joined the British headquarters staff in France. There are several bodies of Canadin troops doing duty across the channel already, but only on the lines of communications. These are certain western cavalry units, whose training was completed before they left Valcartier.

GREAT BRITAIN ADDS TO NAVY

Even those who are on duty in the fleet hardly realize perhaps how considerable have been the additions to the British naval fighting strength since the war opened. Hostilities began at a time when a large number of vessels were on the point of completion in this country either for the British navy or for other powers. The result is that by a little extra effort it was possible to make very substantial additions to the fighting strength. The October navy list was corrected down to September 15, and it shows that since the war began the following vessels have been commissioned for sea:

Four battleships of the dreadnought type—the Agincourt, of 27,000 tons; the Benbow, of 25,000 tons; the Emperor of India, of 25,000 tons; and the Erin, of 23,000 tons. These vessels embody all the latest offensive and defensive powers.They mount thirty 13.5-inch guns, throwing a 1,400 projectile; fourteen 12-inch guns, using a 870-pound projectile, and sixty 6-inch guns with a hundred pound shell.

One battle cruiser of the dreadnought type, the Tiger, of 28,000 tons, carries eight 13-inch and twelve 6-inch guns, thus raising the aggregate number of new battle guns to fifty-two, with seventy-four 6-inch guns.

Besides these there were four light cruisers, three armored cruisers, two flotilla leaders ande ight large destroyers.

It is not a little surprising to contemplate this list of new ships which have been completed since the war opened. The enemy has nothing to gain by the policy of waiting, but is rather suffering owing to Britain's much greater resources. In shipbuilding, and therefore in staying power, she is still supreme. The nation has at its service not only the thousands of men ordinarily engaged in creating naval armaments for service under the British flag, but it has now working for it all other skilled workmen who in peace conditions are engaged in creating ships of war for other countries. Germany has no comparable resources. British naval experts know what ships she can be completing from the knowledge of the ships which were building when the war opened.

In August shipbuilding in Germany, owing to strikes and other causes, was in arrears and her resources are limited. Britain's resources on the other hand, are greater than those of any two other powers combined, and consequently the longer this delay the more she gains, particularly as she is now completeing the 1912-13 program, when she put in hand five dreadnoughts, including the Malays, to Germany's two.

ARRESTED FOR ASSISTING GERMANS ACROSS BORDER

A military guardman, said to be a Canadian citizen, has been arrested at Chippewa on the serious charge of assisting German reservists across the border. It is said that the prisoner was receiving a rake-off from every man whom he succeeded in getting past the immigration authorities.

This is the second charge of this kind laid since the war commenced, a man named Schaffed being now held for trial at Montreal for assisting Germans and Austrians to get away. The charge is treason and the punishment is death.

Two Germans who enlisted with the first contingent tried to poison the Canadian soldiers on board ship on the way across the pond. It is reported that as soon as they arrived, in England they were shot as spies.

A circular letter is being sent to Austrians and Germans in the Hat stating that if the authorities take their weapons from them they can get more in Philadelphia.

In all the letters coming from the Canadian soldiers at Salisbury Plains the writers tell of the extremely wet weather. Evidently there wasn't much need for the wet canteens.

The English church whist drive and social, which was to have been held last night has been postponed till next Thursday, the 26th. All are welcome.

The girls in town have organized what they call a M. U. M. club. Rather a peculiar name for a girls' club, but so far they have kept mum as to what it stands for.

The merchants in town are already starting to show Christmas goods. Only five weeks more now. Do your shopping early and get the best choice.

Keep in mind the consecration ceremony of the new English church by the Lord Bishop of Qu'Appelle, on Dec. 3. After the ceremony a reception will be held in Reid's hall.

Mrs. J. W. Whalen, Misses Elsie Clare, Violet Gibson, Edith Pickolt, Ethel Duggan, and Messrs. Otto Shipley, Luther Clare, Harry Jackman, Geo. Abbott and B. Sainer attended the I.O.O.F. dance given in Medicine Hat last Monday evening, and report a most enjoyable evening.

The Brick and Coal Co. is shipping great quantities of coal to all parts of the west these days. Nine cars were shipped yesterday. At present they have a full staff on in the day time, and also a night gang working steady in the mine.

Redcliff was a busy spot last Monday and Tuesday, when the three hundred men from the G.N.R. construction camps came in here to get paid off. Mr. Miller was the busiest man in town writing out checks. The Redcliff hotel was filled to the roof accommodating those from outside points.

Although it is now only a little over two weeks till nomination day for trustees and councillors, there is very little talk of possible candidates to fill the vacancies. The only new blood we have heard of so far are Mr. David Black and R. S. Hodge, who have signified their intention to enter the field as councilors.

A. C. Fitkin, who has been on the Review staff for the past year, left Wednesday for Claresholm, to accept a more lucrative position on the paper in that town. Mr. Fitkin was a steady and faithful employee in this office, and we feel sure he is well qualified for the position he has gone to fill.
